OUR FOUNDER

Candace Chellew-Hodge is the founder and editor of Whosoever.

A 2002 graduate of the Candler School of Theology at Emory University in Atlanta, Chellew-Hodge currently serves as the associate pastor at Garden of Grace United Church of Christ in Columbia, South Carolina.

Chellew-Hodge’s first book, Bulletproof Faith: A Spiritual Survival Guide for Gay and Lesbian Christians will be published in September 2008 by Jossey-Bass.

Chellew-Hodge is a dynamic speaker and workshop presenter and is available to speak at conferences and churches about issues surrounding sexuality and spirituality.

To schedule Chellew-Hodge for speaking engagements or workshop presentations, please contact her by email at editor@whosoever.org or visit <http://www.whosoever.org/speaking>.

OUR MISSION

Whosoever Ministries exists to create safe and sacred spaces for gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender Christians by working to build welcoming and inclusive communities of faith both online and in local regions.

Understanding that many GLBT people of faith have been spiritually scarred by mainstream church teachings, Whosoever's ministries provides resources to help GLBT people reclaim their faith, rekindle their relationship to God through Christ, and grow in their spiritual relationship to God. Whosoever is dedicated to emboldening GLBT people and their straight allies to work for justice and equality within the church and secular society.

Whosoever assures GLBT people that they are included in God's unconditional love and are already justified by their faith and sanctified by grace alone.

OUR HISTORY

Whosoever was founded in June 1996 and produced its first printed issue in July 1996.

Financial pressures proved too great for the fledgling print version of the magazine and with the March/April 1997 issue Whosoever became an exclusively online magazine for gay, lesbian and bisexual Christians.

In November 1997, transgender people were added to our outreach.

WHOSOEVER'S IMPACT

Every time I open Whosoever I am amazed at the quality and quantity of work that goes into this magazine for GLBT Christians, their friends and families.

-- Mel White, Founder, Soulforce

Whosoever is a vital asset to the health and spiritual well being of many, and I am enormously grateful.

-- Louie Crew, Founder, Integrity USA

Whosoever speaks to my real heart, which recognizes transgender as an essential part of the core of my being. I know that God, who made me as I am, loves me as I am.

-- Sarah, a reader

As a heterosexual, listening to and learning from the experiences of GLBT Christians has been a great help in my spiritual journey. Whosoever is a wonderful resource.

-- David B., a reader

I was on the steps of suicide because I lost all hope, because I couldn't stand the fact that I was bisexual. But now I realize that God is always there for me. Thanks so much for giving me that!

-- Paul, a reader
